Charoen Pokphand Foods., PLC. (CPF), a leading integrated agro-industrial and food business, has signed a Memorandum of Understanding (MOU) with Boehringer Ingelheim Animal Health (Thailand) Co., Ltd., a global leader in animal health. The collaboration aims to drive their mission and commitment to supporting the goal of achieving net-zero greenhouse gas emissions (Net-Zero), contributing to environmental conservation and fostering a low-carbon society.

The agreement focuses on efficient waste management through the conversion of used poultry farm veterinary packaging into Refuse-Derived Fuel (RDF), a renewable energy source. The signing ceremony was attended by Mr. Panuwat Niamprem, Head of Integrated Poultry Business of CPF, and Mr. Apisak Khunwetch, Head of Animal Health at Boehringer Ingelheim Animal Health (Thailand) Co., Ltd. Also present were Mr. Prasit Boondoungprasert, CEO of CPF, and executives from both organizations, Mr. Johannes Kerner, Economic Cooperation Advisor at the German Embassy in Thailand, and representatives from the German-Thai Chamber of Commerce and the public sector. This marks a significant milestone in advancing Boehringer’s “Towards Net Zero for the Neo World” initiative in Thailand, aligning with CPF’s Net-Zero 2050 target.

Mr. Johannes Kerner, Economic Cooperation Advisor at the German Embassy, commended the “Net Zero for the Neo World” project as an example of Germany’s commitment to environmental responsibility and technological innovation. He highlighted the effective collaboration between German and Thai business partners in enhancing production efficiency and reducing carbon emissions in the food industry, creating a ripple effect of positive environmental impact. He praised Boehringer for initiating the project and CPF for promoting a circular economy within the food production value chain.

Mr. Prasit Boondoungprasert, CEO of CPF, stated that CPF and Boehringer have been long-standing partners, working closely with the public sector, including the Department of Livestock Development, to develop the livestock industry. He emphasized that in today’s business landscape, all stakeholders—both public and private—must work together to balance business and environmental responsibilities. CPF prioritizes achieving Net-Zero emissions by 2050, along with sustainable water and packaging management. The collaboration with Boehringer strengthens their joint efforts in packaging sustainability, contributing to environmental conservation.

Mr. Apisak Khunwetch, Head of Animal Health at Boehringer Ingelheim Animal Health (Thailand) Co., Ltd., expressed his pleasure and honor in partnering with CPF. He noted that this collaboration would enhance operational efficiency, drive environmental responsibility, and support global food security through sustainable business practices.

Ms. Cinderella Carlinda Kalimpin, Head of Animal Health for ASEAN, South Korea, Australia, and New Zealand at Boehringer Ingelheim Animal Health, reaffirmed Boehringer’s focus on long-term responsibility and sustainable development. She emphasized the importance of partnerships in developing environmentally friendly products. The collaboration with CPF reflects both companies’ commitment to expanding joint initiatives to address environmental challenges that significantly impact animal, human, and planetary health.

The partnership between CPF and Boehringer demonstrates their dedication to reducing greenhouse gas emissions and promoting environmentally friendly practices in the animal health and food industries. The initiative involves properly categorizing and converting used poultry farm veterinary packaging into RDF fuel. In 2024, Boehringer received certification from TÜV Rheinland, a globally recognized certification body, confirming the reduced environmental impact of its innovative poultry pharmaceutical packaging. The new technology significantly lowers environmental impact compared to traditional glass bottle packaging throughout its lifecycle, from production and transportation to storage and waste management.
